By Charles Darnton.

HERE were two features of last night's production of "Iolanthe" at the Forty-eighth Street Pheatre that deserve special men

First of all, Marie Horgan prove herself the best and funniest Fairy Queen that De Wolf Hopper has ever countered, and there was added se for laughter when Mr. Hopper who has so often assured us in heartfelt words that Gilbert means hard lines for the actor-tripped over those difficult lines of the Lord Chancellor's famous patter song.

It was as though the mischievous pirit of Gilbert had suddenly descended upon the uncommonly glib omedian to tie his tongue. Anyway, he stopped, stuttered, and for a moment flung his hands about his elped to make the song funnier still so that Mr. Hopper came off with more laughs than he would have wor may happen to know, this syllable orgy is maddening enough to give any soler nightmare, brain fever and stage fright all in one. But, as usual Mr. Hopper triumphed in the end and put another capital performance to his credit.

By combining a natural cense humor with common sense, Miss Horgan scored a distinct hit as the Fairy Queen, while vocally she made a new and a very good one-for her M. Her amorous ditty was partiouerty well sung. But have you ever noticed that contraits solos in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas are very much alike? Though Miss Horgan, viewed in the light of spring fashions, can soarcely be regarded as "a perfect thirty-six," she looked very comely, as Digby Bell would say, in her new blond wig.

Gladys Caldwell made a delightfully girlish picture as Iolanthe, the salously young mother of the treadian shepherd. Alice Brady was an attractive Phyllis, and in her inging generally she showed marked mprovement over her work in "The Pirates." But it must be said that she and John Willard, who was a rather indifferent Strephon, made a very bad job of their duet. Herbert Waterous sang and waitsed well as the guardsman, Arthur Aldridge put a great deal of enthusiasm into his voice and very little acting into the role of Tolloller, and Richard Temple the Earl of Mountararat. The chorus did excellent work, especially the bunions young ladies, who displayed unusual animation and charm as the almost-what us cult, Chicken Ple and a Salad, Her Answer.

It's all right, ladies of the theatrical profession! Anybody who thinks you ion't know how to perform household duties, especially cooking, is away wrong. Edith Storey, the Vitagraph star, has set you all right in this respect. Yesterday, at the Cosmopolitan Garden, No. 32 West Twenty-third Street, she "pottered" around a while among the kitchen utensils and staple Wiss Storey is unmarried

And fancy groceries and when she emerged from the cultinary encounter it was discovered she had made three kinds of soup, graham bread, walnut bread, biscults, chicken pie and Waldorf salad. A committee of fifty women tasted each item and pronounced the cooking superb.

This is how it came about: Somebody, said to have been Mrs. Albert K. Shipley, had expressed the opinion that actresses were never well versed in the mysteries of the kitchen. Miss Storey heard about it and said she'd be willing to disprove the idea any old time. So it was arranged that she should be given a chance to make good yesterday. Paul Henkel, manager of Keen's Chop House in West Forty-fourth Street, was official inspector. He watched every move Miss Storey made and later declared there was absolutely no shenanigan going on.

young ladies, who displayed unusual animation and charm as the almost-human fairies.

This revival of "Iolanthe" has the spirit and galety of that swinging walts song which sends you humming on your homeward way.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without the sun you've tried without the sun you've tried without the spirit and galety of that swinging "TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "TIZ" cures your comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.
